

Dear Colleagues,

IEEE has been monitoring the developing Coronavirus outbreak.

The safety and well-being of all conference participants is our priority. As you will know, in these last days also Italy has been directly affected by Coronavirus outbreak. After studying and evaluating the announcements, guidance, and news released by relevant national departments, we are very sorry to announce that IEEE-AIM2020, scheduled to be held on March 8-11, 2020 in Moena, Italy will be postponed.

The new conference will be held in the same location, Moena, by the end of the year on December 16-19, 2020.

We thank you for your understanding.

We will continue to work to preserve and further strengthen the high-quality program reached by this conference. We would like to thank you all for the valuable contributions you have given both in terms of scientific presentations and program management.

All registrations will be considered effective for the new dates.

We are revising the cancellation policies. Further communication will be provided by February 28th 2020.

Again, we apologize for any inconvenience this has caused and please contact aim2020@poliba.it with any questions you may have.

Franca Albertini and Mario Carpentieri

General Chairs of IEEE-AIM2020
